Hereford Steer Tops Western Stock Show

DENVER — (Special) — A prime Hereford steer today made it six in a row for the breed in the grand champion circle at the National Western Stock Show.

The 1,000-pound Hereford named Red was shown by William Irvine of Dysart, Pennsylvania, a veteran feeder who has won top honors on his Herefrd steers at major shows across the country.

The grand champion, selected before a packed arena in the National Western coliseum, was bred by Woody Hereford Ranch of Barnard, Kan

The grand champion, a senior calf, was entered in the open division and made the top steer of the breed and the show by Herman Purdy of Pennsylvania State University.

Immediately following the selection of the Hereford as the grand champion, Secretary Paul Swaffar of the American Hereford Assn. presented Mr. Irvine a $500 check. Special trophies were presented to the winning exhibitor by L. M. Pexton, President of the National Western Stock Show.

The Irvine victory made it two years in a row for Iowa Herefords in the grand champion bracket. The top honor of the National Western last year was won by Dorothy Fae Siehl of Grinnell, Ia., on her 1,015-pound Hereford.

Merle Groff Wins F.F.A. Tractor Drive

If the state tractor driving contest held at Farm Show last week is any indication, Merle Groff, 17, of R1 Strasburg, is the best FFA tractor driver in the state.

Groff placed first in the FFA contest held Friday at Farm Show. He collected $25 for his efforts.

Angus Breeders Sell Half Million Cattle in 1956

HARRISBURG —Pennsylvania Angus breeders rang up another first this past year when they sold over half a million dollars worth of registered breeding cattle at public auctions, it was announced at the Farm Show dinner of the Pennsylvania Angus Association.

Scott L. French, fieldman-secretary of the statewide group, told members that 574 registered bulls, cows and heifers sold for $502,137 at nine public sales. The previous record was made in 1955 when Angus sales totaled $424,325.

The overall average of $875 was second only to 1952 when a record of $912 was set, he said. French predicted an even better year for Angus breeders in 1957. "As quality improves in Pennsylvania herds so will prices received for sale stock," he asserted

"Over 40 per cent of the cattle sold in the 1956 auctions went to out of state buyers," the Angus fieldman said, noting that this was a 'good indication of the quality of cattle produced in Pennsylvania"

Highest-selling Angus in Pennsylvania during 1956 was 22-month-old Bradleys Chimera, according to French. This fancy heifer was bid in at $12,500 at the Heckmeres Highlands production sale in Butler County. Buyer was Millarden Farms, Annville, Pa. Top bull was Eileenmere 1064th. He sold at the Almar Dispersal, Luzerne County, for $3,100.

Another Pennsylvania record was set last spring, French said, when 120 females in the Heckmeres Highland sale brought an average price of $1,921. It was the highest average ever made at a public sale of beef or dairy cattle in the state, French said.

Swine Breeders O.K. Bangs Control Plan

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Cooperative Swine Breeders Assn. passed a resolution at the Pennsylvania Farm Show favoring a swine brucellosis eradication and control program in Pennsylvania.

Dr. Samuel Guss, extension veterinarian, Pennsylvania State University, explained the program as proposed by the State Department of Agriculture.

"The program would be of benefit to every swine breeder in selling brucellosis-free animals, and a benefit to the general public," he said.

Out of 987 samples collected during 1956 only two reacted positively, which Guss says indicates a very small percentage of diseased animals in the State.

Guss said that the program would be voluntary. Each breeder of hogs would have to file a request for participation in the program. The State Department of Agriculture then would test each breeding hog in his herd, and pay indemnities for any diseased animals, he said.

It was the general feeling among breeders that the proposed program could be of great assistance to the swine industry.

A special swine brucellosis advisory committee has been set up by state Agriculture Secretary William L. Henning. The group prepared a preliminary program of operation which now has the endorsement of the swine breed associations.

Breeders Ideas Have Merit

Two excellent proposals came from meetings of breeders associations last week at Farm Show.

The first of these is that a program for the eradication of swine brucellosis be established.

It was noted by the association that during past tests of swine in the state, incidence of the disease is small. The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture also seems inclined to assist in providing compensation for animals that will have to be disposed of.

Therefore it seems that the backers of the program should try to get the plan into action as soon as possible while interest is high.

With a working swine and cattle brucellosis program, Pennsylvania will gain stature and preference in the eyes of out of state buyers for Keystone State stock.

The other proposal is for a "warm up" dairy show for breeders in the Middle Atlantic states in preparation for the National Dairy Show.

With the facilities available at Harrisburg and the transportation and communication facilities available, it seems a "natural" for Pennsylvania to play host to such a show.

At the same time, it will give Pennsylvania breeders an opportunity to match their best against cattle of the surrounding states with a minimum of effort and expense.

A Lesson From the Feedbunk

Probably none of us realizes it, but from a nutrition standpoint those steers, hogs or chickens on the farm actually eat better than we do. As a rule, they get more of the right kinds of foods than do humans, at least.

This was pointed out by a feed manufacturer the other day to emphasize the advances made in animal nutrition in recent years. He went on to point out that the reduced mortality and healthy development of young babies in large measure accounted for the increased life-span of humans, and this in turn was largely a matter of better nutrition — formula feeding of infants. We formula-feed the baby, all right, he continued, but as soon as he can yell and make known his desires, most parents start giving him what he wants and not what he needs. With animals, on the other hand, we formula feed them from the cradle to the grave, so to speak, and consequently, they are much better fed.

Certainly he has a point. Noting the strain on that last notch in the belt, we're not all sure that last helping of pie and ice cream would have been included in our prescribed formula, even though it seemed a good idea at the time. The idea, of course, would be that utopian state wherein all those things we should eat and want to eat would coincide. Maybe human nutritionists would have more luck taking that tack than in trying to tell us what we should and should not eat. At any rate, there is a lesson for us humans out there in the feedbunk.

USING THE OLD NOGGIN

Saw a man the other day trying to park a station wagon between two cars with only inches to spare on either side. He finally made it, but there wasn't room enough for him to open his side door. It appeared he would have to back out and find a new parking place or remain trapped inside his station wagon. He solved his problem though He crawled over the seat, opened the door at the rear, and slid out into the street. Every new year seems to present many "impossible" situations, but if we use our heads like the driver of the station wagon, we'll squeeze by all right

BY JACK REICHARD

50 YEARS AGO (1907)

Readers in general were interested in the story of "The Wild Man of Borneo", a poor old drunken sailor whom P. T. Barnum, the great circus showman, was trying to reform. Barnum was an active supporter of the temperance movement in this country a half century ago.

The old sailor, whom Barnum had known for many years, was an expert with the pocket knife, and during long voyages across the Pacific he would whittle out skulls, skeletons and other things. Finally he found himself at New Bridgeport, Conn., and destitute. He had nothing but a few wooden skulls and skeletons fastened together with wires which rattled when shaken He went to Barnum to try and sell these. He was ragged, hairy and hungry.

"Why, where have you been?"

"Been to Borneo."

"Well, you look it! Come in and sit down. We are just going to have supper!" said the showman.

Th tramp sailor begged Barnum to put him in a cage, like a wild beast, to keep him from drink and where he could sit and whittle and sober up. That is how "The Wild Man of Borneo" was conceived, a great sideshow spectacle for circus goers of 50 years ago.

The aged man refused to play wild man after Barnum died. It was said the showman had left his friend a considerable amount of money.

SOCIETY MATRONS CONCERNED OVER HIRED GIRLS

Newly-landed servant girls into this country half a century ago, brought with them a source of trial and annoyance for families who employed them, especially matrons of the more fashionable households. The more unsophisticated the newcomers were, the more ignorant they were of feminine ways in America, according to an article published in the New York Herald.

The story told of Christine, a young Swedish girl, who came to a family residing in Morris Heights, N. Y. She had just landed, was engaged through an employment agency and entered upon her duties abounding in alacrity but also ignorance.

The young mistress of the household noted with concern that Christine was innocent about corsets. In fact the hired girl had never seen one. She did not even know what they were

The matron, feeling that Christine's apparel was not quite suitable for appearing in the dining room as a waitress, made a trip down town that afternoon and purchased a cheap but durable pair of corsets, which she presented to the new domestic that evening with a smile of self-consame time that the girl should wear them in the future, beginning the next day.

When serving breakfast the following morning, there was no question about the new girl wearing the corsets Even a near-sighted person could tell that because she had them on the outside of everything else.

The matron was aghast, the young husband shamefully amused and Christine gloriously happy and proud as a peacock.

READS BY LIGHT OF SAUSAGE

Prof. Hans Molisch, of Prague, according to a London Mail dispatch, 50 years ago, had been able to read a newspaper by the microbic glow emanating from a sausage.

Prof. Molisch explained that all meat contains the microbe, which projects a greenish-white light. "With sausages it is not so frequent, but is, when present, much stronger," he declared.

He noted that the presence of these microbes in meat was no sign of decay, for in no case had they been found in meat unfit for human consumption.

25 Years Ago

Among the many schemes which have been projected by politicians and others in real or pretended efforts to aid the farmers of the country, few have been of any practical benefit. In fact, some have been productive of more harm than good.

But there is one project of government aid, started 25 years ago, which has in general been helpful. It is the agricultural service, whereby farm and home demonstration agents, trained for this important work, have gone among farmers, their wives, daughters and sons, and taught them how to help themselves.

The various field and home projects and demonstrations carried on by these faithful work-

PRICE OF WIFE IN AFRICA $75

Miss Ruth Thomas, a St. Louis missionary, returning from East Africa, 25 years ago, reported that when an Inhambani wanted to get married he usually went to work in the Johannesburg gold mines to earn the price of a wife. The price of a native wife, in 1932, was $75, which was paid to the girl's father.

According to Miss Thomas, the prospective bridegroom marched into the home of the father and inquired in a bold voice, "Do the cattle eat here?" (Inhambanian for are there any marriageable girls here?)

If the father replied affirmatively the young man produced the bride price and asked for the daughter's hand, but he also had to obtain the consent of the girl.

If the daughter was obstinate it often required a great deal of arguing on the part of the parent to change her views. "However", said Miss Thomas, "seldom does a prospective father-in-law allow $75 to slip away from him".

Miss Thomas pointed out that when an agreement was reached the young couple kneeled before the father for his blessing. He then filled his mouth with water and sprayed the faces of the bride and bridegroom. That completed the wedding

Health and Sin

Lesson for January 27, 1957

IT TAKES a long time for some ideas to sink in Sometimes it happens that a father or mother will give a child a serious talk about something important, but all the child remembers is that there was a talk about it. Years later, as a grown man, the former child will suddenly exclaim: So that's what Father was trying to tell me! Much of Jesus' teaching was like that. He was always giving hints, or saying things straight out, which a few faithful minds remembered, but did not understand. For years the saying of Jesus would be read in the Bible, and scholars would puzzle over it . . . and then hundreds of years after Christ, people would discover what Jesus meant. He was long ahead of his time.

Dr. Foreman

Why People Are In Hospitals

One of these ahead-of-time hints was about the relation between health and sin In the famous story of the man who was paralyzed, brought in by four of his friends for Jesus to heal, it long seemed a puzzling thing that the first thing Jesus said to him did not appear to have anything to do with his case "Your sins are forgiven," Jesus said. Perhaps the four friends found it odd They did not bring the man there to have his soul looked into, they came to get him back on his feet again It was his muscles, not his morals, that seemed to need help But Jesus saw with certain eye that the root of the man's trouble was not in his body, it was in his soul. He saw there was no use sending the man back into activity, with an active body but a crippled soul Jesus that day was probably the only living person who could see that Today the truth has dawned on a great many persons. Dr. Russell Dicks of Duke University says it has been learned that the majority of patients in hospitals would not be there if they were rid of what is eating into their minds.

Sins Against the Body

Psychiatrists, who are M D's first, and who work hand in hand with surgeons, internal-medicine specialists and so on, are trained to probe for these non-physical causes of disease. The causes may be mental or spiritual, —if indeed they can be distinguished. A major cause they look for is the "guilt complex." One who hides within himself, perhaps at a deeper level than conscious memory, a sense of guilt, is a person who falls easy victim to disease, even to accidents. Case records are numerous in which it appears that the patient began to get well as soon as he began to "get right" in his attitude to God or man, or both. (Don't jump to extremes here! If you catch cold it's not necessarily because you've been stealing) One of the most common sins, however, that many commit without being aware of it, is the whole class of sins against one's body, one's health,—against oneself Eating and drinking unwisely, undersleeping, overstrain or undernourishment,—in ways too many to be counted, men and women sin against themselves. If it is a sin to commit suicide, it is equally a sin to do anything or to form any habit which shortens life.

Can Jesus Help?

Jesus brought the paralyzed man back to health of soul and body. Can Jesus help today? Yes, in several strong ways. (1) As a living Spirit, he can bring assurance of God's forgiveness. With that assurance, the inner life can begin again, healed and strong (2) As the unseen but constant Companion, Christ can be so real that in his presence temptation loses its power, and the desire to live as in his presence becomes a high motive of life (3) Christ has so inspired many a man and woman that they have been his personal representatives; he has lived in them and worked through them. Today there are persons, in Alcoholic Anonymous, for example, who have been so touched by the Master that they no longer live for their own appetites, but literally are on call day and night wherever they may help others who are struggling with the same habit which once had dragged them down. Whatever a Christian does for another in the name of Christ is not only done for Him—He does it So Christ today, through those bear his name, helps by cure, but better, by prevention.

Midwest Angus Breeders Set Date, Place for First Futurity

ST JOSEPH, Mo. — The date and location were set for the first Midwest Aberdeen-Angus futurity show and sale following a meeting of prominent Midwest Angus breeders here Jan 7.

The futurity has been planned to take place at Kansas City on March 3 and 4, 1958. Participating states will be Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Oklahoma

It is necessary to set the date for this unique type of cattle show more than a year in advance because of the entry requirements which a futurity demands. The first entries in the show must be in by May 1 of this year

Tranquilizing Drugs Now Used for Dogs

A report in the Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Assn. describes how dogs react to the tranquilizing drugs now being used effectively in human medicine.

There are three types of these drugs.

The Meprobamate drugs are most useful in quieting barking and whining dogs which get lonesome during their stay in the animal hospital at must be confined at home.

Phenythiozine derivatives calm nervous dogs and make vicious dogs easier to handle. They also reduce the amount of anesthetic needed to deaden pain. The lower level of anesthesia makes surgery generally safer for older animals which are usually the ones requiring surgical treatment.

The third group of drugs are chiefly used to control convulsions in both man and animals.

The tranquilizing drugs cannot be considered as a replacement for kindness and gentleness in treating animals, but they allow the veterinarian to handle animals with less use of restraining devices.

For the Farm Wife and Family

As we read over the recipes in the magazines and papers these days we find that honey is being used more and more as a sweetening agent. It used to be that honey was placed on the shelf beside the jams and jellies and used as such. But it is being substituted for sugar in many new ways. Honey may be found in, as well as on, more baked goods in the future, as a result of research by Kansas State College This work, aimed at expanding the use of honey in commercial bakery products, shows that substituting honey for all or part of the sugar in some baked goods adds to their color and flavor and improves their texture.

A method developed in this research makes use of honey alone to sweeten cakes a commercial possibility for the first time.

Cakes with a high concentration of honey stay moist and fresh tasting longer than do cakes made without honey. But if more than a third of the sugar is replaced, preparing cakes by a simple substitution of honey for sugar sometimes causes difficulty.

A reaction of honey acids with baking powder as the batter is mixed may lead to low cake volume. Also, an intense browning reaction may occur during baking and give the cake a burned color and flavor. Extra soda cannot be added to increase volume of the cak, because it hastens undesired browning.

The researchers found they could control this browning reactin by raising the acidity of the cake batter in the final stages of baking. To do this they used potassium bitartrate coated with a stearate, which melts and releases the acid near the end of the baking time. Excellent cakes in which all the sugar was replaced by honey were produced by this method. Other methods to control browning are being studied.

Honey noticeably added to the flavor and color of some cookies. Because honey gives the cookies a chewy quality, only enough to replace five per cent of the sugar was used in crisp cookies. Even this small amount gave flavor to sugar cookies and vanilla wafers. In chewy cookies, such as fruit bars and brownies, honey was used to replace over half the sugar.

The bread-making process did not need to be altered when honey was substituted for sugar in bread and rolls in the tests. Honey substituted for six per cent of the sugar in white breads and up to 12 per cent in dark breads imparted a rich flavor and aroma to both.

Honeys from various flower sources differ in moisture content, color, flavor, acidity, and sugar composition. The Kansas research workers used 15 types of honey and found that only the differences in flavor and color affected the baked goods. Although stronger, darker colored honeys, including those from buckwheat and heartsease, were not acceptable for most baked products, they could be used in mixtures with light honeys.

Now that you see what can be done with honey in your baking maybe you would like to try some recipes using honey. Don't these Honey Hermits sound good?

HONEY HERMITS

2¼ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup shortening
1 cup honey
½ cup brown sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
3 tablespoons milk
1 cup seedless raisins
1 cup dried currants
1 cup chopped dates
½ cup chopped nuts

Sift flour, soda, salt and spices together three times. Cream shortening with honey and sugar. Add eggs. Add milk, dry ingredients, fruit and nuts and mix thoroughly. Drop from teaspoon on to greased baking sheet and bake in hot oven (400 degrees) 10 to 12 minutes. Makes about four dozen.

* * *

HONEY TWIST

1 cup milk, scalded
¼ cup butter
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 cakes yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water

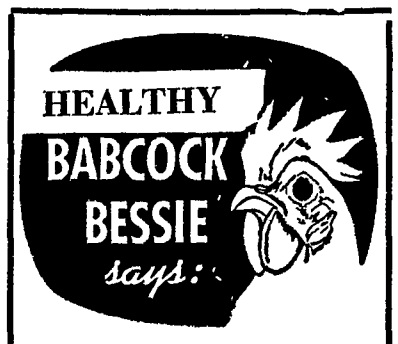
Miss June Hartranft, a missionary in Sierra Leone Africa, told about her work, the climate and the people of Africa in a talk before Farm Women 3 Jan. 19 at the home of Mrs. Irvin Burkholder, Farmersville.

New officers were installed by Miss Alva Stuber, past president. Reports on the recent state convention at Harrisburg were given by Mrs. Gilbert Paul, Mrs. Elam Shelly and Mrs. Harold Stuber.

Members brought canned goods to be given to Crisps Attucks. Mrs. Burkholder served refreshments at a social hour following the meeting

The next meeting will be held Feb. 16 at the home of Mrs Ivan Eberly, R1 Ephrata.



Feed a High Quality-Laying Mash.

Feed the very best quality laying mash you can find in your locality. Try to buy it at the best possible price. If you are feeding a "price feed" and not getting top lay, I suggest that you put one pen of pullets onto the best quality mash you can find and see what happens. You should see a difference in two to four weeks.

It is a mistake to feed a ration that contains coarsely ground particles of grain that the birds can sort out from the rest of the mash. This usually causes poor production and trouble from cannibalism.

2 eggs
5 to 6 cups sifted flour

Pour hot milk over butter, sugar and salt. Crumble yeast into lukewarm water to soften. Cool milk to lukewarm, add yeast and well-beaten eggs. Beat in flour to make a soft dough, then turn out on floured board and knead until smooth. Form into a ball and place in greased bowl. Cover and let rise until doubled in bulk When light, shape into long roll about one inch in diameter Coil roll into greased cake pan, beginning at the outside edge and covering the bottom Brush with honey topping Let rise until doubled in bulk and bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) 25 to 30 minutes

If desired, sprinkle with chopped nuts and chopped candied cherries and pineapple before baking

HONEY TOPPING

¼ cup butter
⅔ cup confectioners' sugar
1 egg white
2 tablespoons honey, warmed

Cream all ingredients together and brush over Twist before setting to rise.

* * *

HONEY FROSTING

1 cup honey
2 egg whites

Boil the honey about ten minutes (238 degrees F.). Remove from the fire and cool while the egg-whites are beaten stiff, then pour the honey in a thin stream over them, beating the mixture constantly until thick enough to spread. Cool before spreading.

* * *

HONEY COCONUT TOPPING

Mix together the following.
2 tablespoons soft butter
3 tablespoons honey
1 tablespoon cream
½ cup shredded coconut
Dash of salt

After spreading on cake, place 3 inches under broiler (low heat) until mixture bubbles and browns (three to five minutes). Do not burn.

* * *

HONEY SAUCE

1 egg
½ cup honey
1 cup hot water
1½ tablespoons butter
½ lemon, juice and grated rind

Beat the egg, and add the other ingredients in the order given. Cook over hot water for about fifteen minutes, stirring constantly

* * *

HONEY SANDWICH BREAD

1 cup sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup graham flour
½ cup bran
½ cup chopped nuts

1 egg
1 cup milk
½ cup honey

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together and mix well with graham flour, bran and nuts Beat egg and add milk and honey. Add to dry ingredients and mix only enough to dampen all the flour Pour into greased loaf pan and bake in hot oven (400 degrees F) 30 minutes Makes one loaf

* * *

HONEY BUTTER

Beat one-half cup honey into one-half cup soft butter. Add one teaspoon grated orange rind and beat until fluffy.

* * *

Maybe some of you own favorite recipes using honey If you do, send them in to us and we will print them in this column.

A new way to cook macaroni and spaghetti.

Add four ounces of the macaroni food to three cups boiling salted water. Use two teaspoons salt Increase or decrease the amount of water as you vary the quantity you wish to cook Stir constantly for two minutes Then remove from heat, cover and let stand 10 minutes Drain and rinse immediately.

If you're using a macaroni food in a hot dish, use hot water for rinsing. If it's a cold macaroni salad in the making, use cold water for rinsing When you cook more macaroni, spaghetti or noodles than you need for one dish, store the remainder in the refrigerator for another meal Before using, freshen it by running hot or cold water through it

Eastern Open Dairy Cattle Show Proposed by Pennsylvania Dairymen

HARRISBURG — A proposed Pennsylvania eastern open all breed dairy show today had the endorsement of the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association as authorized in resolutions adopted at the final session of its annual Farm Show meeting.

The association, J. O. Canby, Langhorne, president, requested appropriation of needed funds to launch the show in 1958. The resolution added: 'The city of Harrisburg, with its unexcelled facilities for transportation, housing and showing is the logical location for a great eastern dairy cattle show."

While sponsored and conducted by Pennsylvania, the proposed dairy exposition would be open to any other state, and in this respect would differ from the dairy show at the Pennsylvania Farm Show which admits dairy entries from Pennsylvania only

Another resolution urged that the state brucellosis eradication program, now directed at cleaning up dairy and beef cattle herds, be extended to include swine and goats.

"Hearty commendation" was given the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and the State Brucellosis Committee for their "notable accomplishment" in the current brucellosis (Bang's disease) campaign.

State funds were requested also to enlarge and staff adequately the large animal veterinary science research laboratory at Pennsylvania State University. "Present research and diagnostic facilities are inadequate," the association declared.

Still other resolutions saluted One. Farm Show Manager John B. McCool and his associates for "improvement" of the show and for aiding exhibitors; two President Canby, for "tireless devotion" to the association, often at "the expense of his private interests"; three Charles E. Cowan, Lancaster, association secretary, in recognition of a "task well done," and four the Inter-State Milk Producers Association, for providing Cowan with office space.

The gestation period is usually longer for the male young in cattle, horses, and posibly sheep and camels; for females, in man and possibly guinea pigs.

Smokey Bear International Symbol Now

Smokey, the forest fire preventin' bear, has gone international, the U S Department of Agriculture says A cooperative agreement between the Forest Service and the Canadian Forestry Assn has just been signed which makes Smokey the official forest fire prevention symbol in Canada as well as in the United States

The Association of State Foresters, which works with the Department's Forest Service and The Advertising Council in conducting the Nation's forest fire prevention program, authorized this agreement. Application to have the Smokey Bear symbol copyrighted in Canada has been made to the Canadian Trademark Office In the United States the Smokey symbol is protected by an Act of Congress

Director J. L Van Camp of the Canadian Forestry Association expects the Smokey Bear Program to have as great an appeal in Canada as here. Edward Cliff, Assistant Chief of the Forest Service, in signing the agreement, said he thought both the United States and Canada would benefit from combining efforts and concentrating on a single campaign

Both countries will sue the same or similar fire prevention messages Methods, materials, and means of presentation shall also be similar, according to terms of the agreement
